GOP Bigwigs Escape Plane Injury

Vassalboro, Me., March 15 (AP)—Republican presidential aspirant Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Sen. Owen Brewster of Me., escaped injury today when a plane in which they were making a speaking swing through Maine developed engine trouble and made a forced landing on the ice-bound Kennebec river.

Neither of the senators was hurt, nor was the pilot, Chairman John T. Clark of the Maine Aeronautics Commission, who was flying Taft to the University of Maine at Orono where he was to address the student body.

This was the final leg of Taft's swing through the state in quest of support of the 13 delegates that Maine will send to the Republican National Convention.

The plane was lightly damaged, but Taft and Brewster walked to shore and continued their journey in an automobile sent from Augusta by Gov. Horace A. Hildreth.

The plane, owned by the State Aeronautics Commission, stalled over the river when engine trouble developed. Brewster said that only the alertness of Clark and his expert handling of the craft averted a tragedy.

Yesterday, a press conference at Augusta, Me., Taft said he did not believe there is an indication of impending war.

He disputed the warning given Saturday by former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the United States may have to meet a world crisis "four or five weeks from now."

ed their appreciation for seizing complete control of the Czech government.

There was a bit of window-dressing to justify the Communists' action. But even they didn't seem to take it very seriously. The Communist-led police searched the National Socialist Party headquarters for the uprising and "discovered" documents supposedly revealing a conspiracy of armed revolt against the state.

The Communists' subsequent action to quell a revolt against the status quo. They did such things as turn the legal owners out of factories and other business places and replace them with "national managers."

There seems to have been no bitter opposition to the Communists in Czechoslovakia so long as they operated within the framework of a republic and permitted some democratic freedoms. As President Benes said, "It is clear to me that socialism is a way of life, and not a political program."

But that did not square with Communist policy. It was not enough to have the biggest popular vote and majority control of the cabinet and parliament. The pattern of terror and tyranny had to be repeated, for communism seems to know no other way. So free Czechoslovakia is no more.

Czechoslovakia did not oppose Russia. She was a neighbor and an ally. She was not militaristic or imperialistic or capitalistic. She did not threaten or demand. Her only sins were independence and freedom. In short, she was about what Henry Wallace and the third party would have this country become as a means of ensuring peace.

It seems to us that Czechoslovakia's fate is a challenge to Mr. Wallace and his theories. Thus far he has parried the challenge by saying, "It is impossible to know what the truth is from the American press." The American press can endure the insult. But the insult is no answer to give the voters whose support Mr. Wallace is seeking.

A policy of softness and subservience cost Czechoslovakia her freedom. Would the same policy satisfy Russia and preserve freedom in the rest of Europe in the United States should adopt it? That is a question which Mr. Wallace must answer honestly if he is to justify the claim that his political gospel holds the key to world peace.

New York, March 15 (AP)—Non-futures turned irregular in slow dealings today, with traders inclined to take profits following last Saturday's sharp advance.

Following small early gains, the market reacted almost 3 1/2 a bale on New Orleans and commission houses selling before prices steadied on mill buying.

There was fair amount of switching from the mar to later months. Trading in March 1948 expires at noon tomorrow.

Futures closed 70 cents to 1.05 a bale lower than the previous close.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS
Chicago, March 15 (AP)—Wheat prices moved up and down in a nervous manner on the board of trade today. Prices were ahead of last Saturday's close much of the day, but selling toward the close caused a decline, corn was firm and oats steady.

There was no word on what wheat supplies the commodity Credit Corporation was able to obtain Saturday, when it re-entered the cash market. However, the local CCC office said it made no purchases.

Active wheat contracts ended 1-2 to 2 cents lower, May $2.38-$2.38 3/4, although the lightly traded March delivery gained a cent. Corn was 1-4 lower to 1-4 higher, May $2.19 3/4-1/2 and active oats corn was 1-4 lower to 7-8 higher, May $1.13 1/8-$1.13.

March oats rose 3-4 cents. Soybeans were 1-2-2 1/2 higher, May $3.42 1/2.

Corn was two to five cents higher; basis unchanged to a cent up; bookings 16,000 bushels; receipts 154 cars. Oats were higher; basis unchanged; receipts 48 cars. Soybeans receipts were six cars.

as it is, the Greek situation is not without hope."

"The danger remains that the Communist-dominated countries of Europe will increase their pressure on Greece just as they have in other directions in Europe. Is is the boast of the totalitarian leaders that Democracies are incapable of timely and decisive agreements.

"Should we fail to continue our efforts, the consequences would be swift and tragic and they would not be confined to Greece.

As for Turkey Marshall said that nation is confronted by the same threat as Greece, "but not in so active a manner."

"To remain relatively safe from aggression," Marshall said, "Turkey must remain strong; but she cannot do so indefinitely on her meager resources."

Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told reporters he had no comment on Marshall's testimony. He said the committee will meet again Wednesday to hear testimony from Greece and Turkey and on China from two high-ranking army officers.

The administration has asked Congress for $570,000,000 for economic aid for China.

Hot Springs.

The high court held that outright sale of 70 acres of the 230-acre McClelland Springs property near Hot Springs had revoked only the provisions of the will relating to that portion of the property.

Although Miss Bush had sold the remainder, the entire purchase price had not been paid and any money collected therefrom after her death came under the will, which directed a division among relatives and charitable organizations.

The lower court had held that the conditional sale removed the property from provisions of the will.

In a case originating in Greene County, the supreme court held that B. M. Fears and other landowners were entitled to no part of the proceeds of a rice crop grown by R. E. Coleman until after Coleman's indebtedness of $56,000 to the White River Production Credit Association had been paid entirely.

The landlords had signed waiver of liens on equipment owned by Coleman to enable him to obtain a crop loan from the association. They contended they did not intend to sign waivers as noted in the high court construed them to be.

The landlords' position was upheld in the chancery court, but the high court reversed this opinion and remanded the case.

In a companion case, the court affirmed the chancery court in refusing the landlords a judgment against M. O. Valentine, who purchased mortgages on land from Coleman while the other suit was pending.

her voice was harsh. "I don't know."
"Well, look," Rush said and there was an edge to his voice that she recognized as a danger signal; Rush's temper was growing short. "You must know! I mean—doggone! Ann, if you don't know, who does? Or don't you know what you want?" He watched her and his probing eyes made her shiver. Rush's eyes made her shiver. "The thing is, there's no point in getting everyone all up in the air over nothing. Go ahead and call Cheyenne if you want to but it seems to me—"
And Enos cut in so easily it was almost as though he had visibly smoothed ruffled feathers. Enos said, "But we want to ease Ann's mind, Rush. She'll rest better and recover more quickly if—"
From a far distance she heard herself distinctly. "There's nothing the matter with my mind," she said, and then the blackness and the terror descended upon her, came down like a dark angry cloud out of the strong June sunshine, and like drowning and, although she struggled, she knew full well she was quite lost. I accomplished nothing at all, she thought. I gave away all my knowledge and didn't gain a thing. And so it will go on... and on... and on... (To Be Continued)

DOROTHY DIX Children Do Grow Up!

Dear Dorothy Dix: We have three sons for whom my husband and I have sacrificed our lives to give them the education that we did not have. But since the two eldest boys have come home from the war and we are simply crushed. They act like complete strangers and we are simply crushed. I had made such wonderful plans for them. I had picked out a wife for my eldest son, a girl with a nice family background who would make him a lovely wife, but he refuses the fact and won't even go to see her. My husband had arranged for them. I was left without any money, so I went to work and managed to support and educate my youngsters.

Now I am 41 years old and I have this problem. A man eight years younger than I am has been in love with me for two years and is urging me to marry him. He is a fine chap in every way. Has a beautiful home, which he bought for his mother who has passed away, and he is old for his age as I am young for mine. I have told him he should get someone his age, but he wants someone as stable as I am.

DISAPPOINTED MOTHER
Answer: After children have grown up and are adult men and women, the parents' motto should be: HANDS OFF. And, unfortunately, this seems to be the one thing that fathers and mothers are incapable of doing. Because they directed every movement and made every decision for Tommy and Sue when they were little, they feel that they have the right to pick out their husbands and wives for them and decide on their careers, and generally play God to them.

This parental obsession that they are incarnate wisdom and are entitled to meddle with their children's lives has caused as much unhappiness as any other one thing in the world. Immature men and women have been failures because their parents forced them to do the work they had no aptitude for, instead of letting them do the work they would have rejoiced in doing.

Abets Divorces
Millions of unhappy marriages that have ended in divorce are the result of parental interference. Papa and Mama wouldn't let Sally marry the boy she loved because they didn't like the color of his eyes or the cut of his clothes.

It is soothing to parental vanity for fathers and mothers to think their children should be and do, but it's not true. Every child is born with its own particular assortment.

Dear Miss Dix: Ten years ago my husband deserted me and our three children and since then I have never heard from him nor do I know where he is. Fair Enough
By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1947

Lewis Gannett, the book review editor and "literary critic" of the New York Herald Tribune, is a loud and influential voice in the expression of the policy of this publication. The Herald Tribune, originally the Tribune, was known for many years as a Republican partisan paper with complications. It was Republican, pro-British and high-Protestant and it propagated bridge and squash.

Whatever its formal political faith now, it certainly has compromised its old fundamentalism to kiverism.

As I say, Mr. Gannett is the head of the daily department devoted to bookish interests.

It is not necessary to interpret for you Gannett's political inclinations and objectives. You can roll your own conclusions.

In that invaluable, rare reference work, Committee Print, Appendix, Part IX, Communist Front Organizations, published by the National Printing Office in 1944, Mr. Gannett is mentioned seventeen times. I am not insinuating that he is un-American or a Communist in reporting this. That would be the sincerest technique used by many of those with whom we find this pundit associated over many years, but it is not my way. However, the Congressional committee was called the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, and the mention of Communist-front organizations stands on the cover. Those facts are to be interpreted as you will.

First citation, Page 311—Lewis S. Gannett is mentioned, with William Z. Foster, the present chief of the Russian International Communist Party, and with other notorious Communists, as a member of the National Committee of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League. His name, among others, occurred on the letterhead of a communication which greeted the addressee as "Dear Comrade," the Communist employed by the Communist Party.

Lewis Gannett, the book review editor and "literary critic" of the New York Herald Tribune, is a loud and influential voice in the expression of the policy of this publication. The Herald Tribune, originally the Tribune, was known for many years as a Republican partisan paper with complications. It was Republican, pro-British and high-Protestant and it propagated bridge and squash.

Whatever its formal political faith now, it certainly has compromised its old fundamentalism to kiverism.

As I say, Mr. Gannett is the head of the daily department devoted to bookish interests.

It is not necessary to interpret for you Gannett's political inclinations and objectives. You can roll your own conclusions.

In that invaluable, rare reference work, Committee Print, Appendix, Part IX, Communist Front Organizations, published by the National Printing Office in 1944, Mr. Gannett is mentioned seventeen times. I am not insinuating that he is un-American or a Communist in reporting this. That would be the sincerest technique used by many of those with whom we find this pundit associated over many years, but it is not my way. However, the Congressional committee was called the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, and the mention of Communist-front organizations stands on the cover. Those facts are to be interpreted as you will.

First citation, Page 311—Lewis S. Gannett is mentioned, with William Z. Foster, the present chief of the Russian International Communist Party, and with other notorious Communists, as a member of the National Committee of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League. His name, among others, occurred on the letterhead of a communication which greeted the addressee as "Dear Comrade," the Communist employed by the Communist Party.
